

Sailing in Timeless Elegance

HALAS 71

THE LEGACY OF HALAS 71

Halas 71 was built in 1914 in Glasgow by Fairfield Shipbuilding & Engineering Co. for the historic Şirket-i Hayriye fleet. She first touched the waters of the River Clyde before beginning her long relationship with Istanbul – a vessel created with precision, purpose, and timeless character.

A BRIEF HISTORY

During the First World War, she was requisitioned by the British Admiralty, renamed Waterwitch, and served as a Royal Fleet Auxiliary (RFA) ferry during the Gallipoli Campaign. She returned to Turkey in 1923, was renamed Halas—meaning Salvation—and spent nearly sixty years as one of the Bosphorus's most beloved passenger ferries.

Restored in the 1980s, she now sails as an elegant heritage yacht, carrying Istanbul's maritime spirit into the present.
